Construction/Reconstruction brought changes throughout the world

While many changes were occurring at Bland School, the whole world was also reconstructing. The Soviet Union became a democracy with Boris Yeltsin at its head. Many Russian states such as Lithuania, Estonia and Latvia broke off from the USSR and became independent countries. North and South Korea, after years of fighting, signed a peace agreement in order to become one country.

Changes were also taking place here in the USA. The William Kennedy Smith (rape) and Jeffrey Dahmer (murder) trials left many questioning our court system. After 28 years of service, Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall retired, and was replaced by Clarence Thomas.

On the political scene in Bland the race for sheriff was a heated one between Tom Roseberry and Melvin Cox. The outcome gave Cox the win by 35 votes.

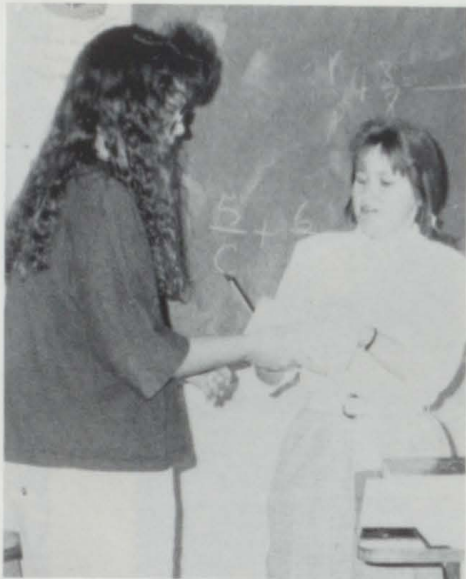

Sports enthusiasts were excited by the Super Bowl and World Series as both were close games. However, the Washington Redskins and Minnesota Twins proved victorious in these contests.

Athletes from all over the world gathered in Albertville, France for the winter olympics in February. The USA brought home 11 medals including five gold ones. The next winter olympics will be held in 1994 at Norway.

Bland students received first-hand information on foreign lands from the two exchange students, Danielle Garcia of Brazil and Giselle Aries of Panama.

Perpetual motion might describe today's world and people. Everything is constantly changing and people must adapt to these changes. Bland School witnessed numerous changes to the buildings with next year to experience structural changes in administration and personnel.

Community Life

Citizens welded together for support

Being a rural area, much of the community life centered around events such as the Bland County Fair, the Lord's Acre Sale, and many church and school functions. People constructed their daily and social lives around the community. Activities were well supported by the community and they readily lent a helping hand when needed.

Citizens welded together to form strong support for or against issues. They heatedly voiced opposition to the proposed medical incinerator, and faithfully visited the recycling centers, helping to protect the environment. Concerned citizens formed "Friends of the Library" to assure the success of the new branch library. This bonding yielded a stable, secure county.

People

Dedication became reality

Dedication took on a new meaning for all personnel during the "construction" year. Chalk dust became a minor irritation when compared to saw dust and the varied odors of concrete fixer, roofing tar, etc. Then there were days of "open house" when only a plastic sheet covered the outside entrance and coats and gloves were essential in the classroom.

Teachers were informed the new lounge would not exist since planners failed to provide water and "other necessities."

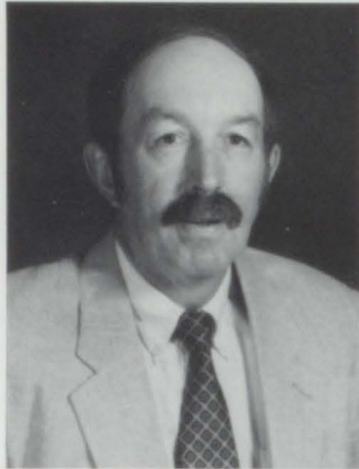

On numerous occasions students knew the teacher was talking because his/her mouth was moving, but a noisy jackhammer drowned out all other sounds. In spite of the sounds, odors, frustration, and inconveniences, the year sped by and ended on a successful note.

Imagination came to the foreground

Imagination came to the foreground when third graders wrote their own stories as a completion of an SOL. Mrs. Sue Dunford prodded and coached them through their tasks.

Mrs. Jan Scott's fourth graders began a study of Virginia and learned the state flower, bird, and seal. As a part of science they studied the parts of the eye, and learned about idioms in English.

Fifth and sixth graders got involved right from the start. Under the supervision of Mrs. Norma Newberry, fifth graders gathered and identified a wide variety of wild flowers. All family members became involved in gathering, labeling and compiling the flowers in a scrapbook. At the beginning of the year, these vibrant students designed and constructed their own Indian villages. These were then judged on structure, authenticity and creativity. The winning villages were Clinton Hagy-(1st), Nathan Winters-(2nd), and Leslie Gordon-(3rd).

Serving on the Fall Festival court were Ashleigh Sarver and Heath Puckett from the fifth, Ashley Havens and John Kelly Thompson from the fifth/sixth combined.

The combination grade for fifth and sixth grades was guided through the year by Miss Kadi Woods.

Jim Bob Penley performs a comedy act in "A Phone Call from God" during the spring music concert.

Writing became the blueprint for the future

Writing became an important part of a sixth and seventh grader's life. As a library project (and an SOL) they wrote original stories in groups. Seventh graders worked on essays, autobiogra-phies and tall tales. Holly Pauley won a district 2d place for her essay on "What is a veteran?".

Sixth graders completed the DARE program and made charts to plot their progress in each sub-

Taking a first step

As eighth graders took their first step into the changing halls of BCS, they experienced intimidation. Somehow, though they were in the first stage of building a high school career, they built courage and managed to participate in the various activities of football, MACC, and basketball.

The girls joined together to form a pep squad for the eighth grade boys' basketball team.

By the end of the year these students were well adjusted and ready to continue climbing step-by-step up the high school ladder.

Securely bolted to school regime

Two years of secondary molding and shaping found sophomores ready to accept their "middle of the road" status. They had survived the teasing and inferiority while building character and stamina. Their lives were securely bolted to the regime of school academics and extra-curricular activities.

Competing with peers for top honors was nothing new; but, competing with the bulldozer, jackhammer, and peculiar odors of construction was radical. These valiant sophomores took it all in stride stating "that's life."

The highlight of this year was driver ed. classes, behind-the-wheel training, and that piece of plastic that allowed them to join the ranks of "road monsters."

Endless tasks boosted Juniors

A Junior's work was never done. Just when they were paid up on last month's donut sales, advisers, Mrs. Mabe and Mrs. Kegley, passed out new donut sheets expecting them to exceed the previous sales.

As in past years, coming up with a prom theme and keeping it a secret proved difficult. But, with plenty of organization and hard work, construction on the prom was completed.

There didn't seem to be enough time for sports participation, extra-curricular activities, and still manage to pass classes. After all, thoughts were on everything but what they did in class. With speculations of their senior year just ahead, the class of '93 took this year's theme of "Under Construction" to heart

Individuals build self- esteem by criticisms and praise

Being in the public eye was a constructive area of an individual's life. They were subjected to criticisms or praise as groups and individuals, which helped to build self-esteem and growth.

Sounds of change ruled final year

The constant sound of the drills, hammers, and other equipment will long be a reminder to the class of '92 of how they spent their last year at Bland Combined School. Not only were they dealing with changes in their own lives (what to do and where to go after graduation), but they were witnessing major changes in their beloved school. Daily class routines were often interrupted by the din of construction machinery when it was impossible to hear the instructions from faculty members.

Having constructed a closeness from kindergarten, they were dealing with mixed emotions. Desires and anticipations of college or being on their own clashed with

STUDENT LIFE

Constructing a wardrobe required creativity

Change not only took place in the school's look, but also in the look of fashion. Popular brand names of Esprit, Nike, Reebok, Levi's and Bugle Boy were still favorites.

Girls enjoyed the combination of shorts, skirts, jeans with sweaters or blouses, both dressy and casual. Guys preferred jeans or shorts paired with tee shirts on which their favorite team logos were printed.

While jeans dominated the scene, there were daily visions of dresses and heels. Creativity, style, and comfort were all basic elements in the construction of a wardrobe and original style.

What goes around comes around. In the world of fashion many elements of style from the 20's and 30's were visible in the designs of the 90's. Modified versions of dropped waistlines, leg-o-lamb sleeves, and ankle lengths found their basis in the modern fashions. Also, the short skirt lengths of the 60's became popular once again.

Bright splashy colors set the tone with accompanying accessories in earrings, bracelets, and belts. Double breasted suits for the males once again appeared in the shops beside the traditional single breasted ones. The choices were many for the fashion conscious student.

"The Bold and the Beautiful"

Along with the renovations to the school, the Miss Bland County Pageant experienced a very major restructuring as it was changed to Miss BHS. Elegance reigned over the gym on April 12, 1991, for the FHA sponsored event.

Twelve "Bold and Beautiful" aspiring young ladies eagerly anticipated their debut to stardom, and although tension and anxiety was felt by each contestant, they proudly made their grand entrance, heads held high. On the way to attaining the ultimate honor of the evening each girl had to grace the stage with beauty and to demonstrate poise, charisma, and intelligence to the panel of judges. Competition consisted of evening gown, casual wear, modeling and interview.

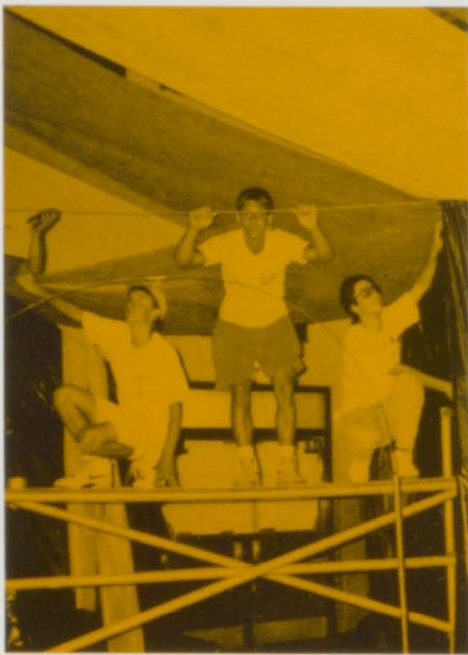

To create the perfect program and to give the contestants changing time, talented students entertained the audience with song and dance. The final moment arrived with emotions in high gear.

This was surely a night to remember for Heather Smith as she was crowned the first Miss BHS. Heather received a tiara, banner, savings bond, and photo album. Placing second was Detria Agee with Denise Shrader securing third. Each contestant also received a photo album to store memorabilia of the night's events.

Prom once again held at school

It looked as though construction had begun ahead of schedule. Scaffolds, ladders, and an array of tools were visible throughout the gym (if you managed to get in). A new entrance had been created by using black paper and plastic. Tall white columns in the center caught your eye and long white boxy areas trimmed the sides. Juniors were everywhere and busy as a beehive. When the transformation was completed, decorations of black and white depicted musical notes, and keyboards forming the theme of "Unchained Melody".

For the first time in over twenty years, the prom was held at the school on May 18, 1991. Another first was the "after prom party" held at the Y center in Bluefield. At the midnight hours students became plain "Cinderellas", leaving their fancy ballroom outfits at home and donning casual attire. Lots of fun and games and activities promised a safe non-drinking outlet for students. Mrs. Delores Thompson, with many assistants, coordinated the party and secured prizes and refreshments to round out a memorable event.

Juniors chose Heather Smith and William Tickle as Queen and King of the prom. Serving at the refreshment table were Bridgette Penley and Mindy Brewster. Refreshments were catered by Mrs. Roxanne Winesett and Mrs. Shelia Richardson. John Goins, our resident DJ, again provided the music.

Unprecedented 5th year win

Once again the class of 1992 powered their way up and over the competition to win the Miss Echo title. The frenzied drive to sell the most yearbooks began on September 16 and it was not unusual to see the candidates running from classroom to classroom collecting money and waving receipts. Day by day the senior class pondered the thought of winning for the fifth time. Their nervous anticipation grew as September 27 (Miss Echo Dance) arrived. The previous four title holders were introduced and entered with an air of confidence. When Shelly Beam was declared the 1992 Miss Echo, a tremendous applause resounded throughout the gym.

For selling a total of 115 yearbooks, Shelly received a banner and tiara, and a $75 savings bond. Sophomore Amie Simms was the first runner-up and received a $50 savings bond for her efforts. Each candidate received a charm bracelet.

Judges job was not an easy task

"Magic Moments" occurred for 54 young and beautiful ladies (ages 5-12) on October 18, 1991. With immaculate hairdos and lovely dresses, they walked the runway for judges and audience in near-perfect composure. Some were even a little daring when they turned to leave by giving the judges a quick, sly, ever-so-slight wink of the eye.

Last year's winners, Sherri Faulkner and Leisa Hagy, took their final walk and then watched the pageant from the sidelines.

It was a tough job for the judges who had to make snap judgments in the short time each individual contestant appeared before them. After completing a score card, it was passed behind them to scorers who then tallied a total score. The ten highest scoring contestants returned to be judged once more. From these the top three were selected.

The winners for Little Miss Bland County were Adriana Faulkner, Jessica Harner-1st runner-up, and Amber White-2nd runner-up. The new Junior Miss was Sarah Smith with Courtney Brizendine 1st runner-up and Rae Romano 2nd runner-up.

The pageant was sponsored and coordinated by the newspaper staff, creative writing class, drama and forensics teams. Advisers for the groups were Mrs. Christine Bird and Mrs. Sandra Green-Harman. Mr. Charlie Thompson served as Master of Ceremonies.

The judges were from Max Meadows and Bluefield. Scorers were Mrs. Patty Hankins, Ms. Elizabeth Newberry and Mrs. Phyllis Umbarger. Mrs. Iris Strock furnished entertaining music throughout the entire pageant.

Candidates strategies of food brought success

Following the kickoff November 1 of the Snow Court campaign, the halls tantalized the olfactory senses with the smells of food. Candidates representing the various clubs planned their strategy to raise money. Sales of nachos, pizzas, pita pockets, taco salads, cookies, candy, fried pies and raffle tickets were a part of the game plan for building a bankroll and winning the title of Snow King & Queen.

FBLA sponsored the Snow Court as a main money project. Each penny counted as a vote so the fattest piggy bank became the winners.

The night of December 7, 1991, the title of Snow King & Queen went to Danny Morehead and Sheree Burton from the SCA. From Sr. Beta were 1st runner-up, Aaron Faulkner and Jeana Dalton, with 2nd runner-up sponsored by FFA, Brad Harden and Amy Goss.

Homecoming shared valentine day

Homecoming week began on Tuesday with PJ day. Frilly night caps, robes, and even some long-johns showed up throughout the school. Wednesday the attire was inside-out, making it impossible to get to jeans pockets. Snow cancelled beach day on Thursday. Friday saw maroon and gold colors everywhere, including painted faces.

Everything was progressing nicely until Mr. Havens realized he had no tiara for the queen, but local merchants solved that problem. Homecoming day was a busy and hectic one. Voting had to be done and counted; FBLA's Project Ask culminated with a pizza party for the winning class (2B); FHA delivered roses, balloons, and toy bears for secret admirers; and the onslaught of florist's deliveries for Valentine young lovers made it a memorable Homecoming Day.

On February 14, 1992, following JV and Varsity games against Rocky Gap, a homecoming dance was held in the gym. Shelly Rae Beam received the honor of homecoming queen with Becky Bird runner-up. Other court members were Bridgette Penley (11), Rachael French (10), Joanie Lambert (9), and Leslie Kelley (8). John Goins was the MC and provided the music.

Caught in the act

Steeling oneself against being caught by the intrepid, sneaking, lurking "camera" became an impossible task. Just when you least expected it, "click", and you were an engraved image inside that little black box. There was little privacy for working, lounging, or just horsing around since year-book members had access to the camera and they loved "catching you."

Academics

Emotions ran high as classmates said adieu

Brave smiles turned to tears on June 1, 1991, as the graduating seniors received their diplomas. Days prior to this event were filled with anticipation. As "the day" arrived they knew they now were responsible for making or breaking their dreams. While maintaining a close comradery, the 1991 class had been very competitive in academics and sports among themselves as well as district schools. Their expertise and competitive drive brought them many awards and honors and set goals for the upcoming classes.

Honors bestowed on achievers

Earning a yearly grade average of 95 or above was achieved by a select few. Maintaining that average for several years became even more difficult with the addition of advanced course material. Letters and bars were awarded to students who succeeded in mastering this goal.

An important day at Bland Combined was Awards Day bringing happiness to completers. This day was reserved for the faculty, student body and organizations to recognize students for their achievements in the fields of academics, athletics, leadership, citizenship, service and attendance.

MACC was vital to the school scene

Along with school construction, MACC teams were also under construction, replacing key players lost to graduation. Academics became a vital part of the school year with the introduction of the MACC teams. They now ranked with athletics in importance.

The MACC scene consisted of five teams with matches beginning in February, continuing through March and ending the first of April with a tournament to determine the best teams.

"The tastin' of the sour ball"

Seniors were instructed to write about a true experience and how they felt. In order to have an authentic experience Mrs. Janet Faulkner passed around a box of sour balls.

Thinking they were "just candy" each student popped one in their mouth. "Ugh." "They were awful." Stephanie DeHart and Sarah Thompson reveal some of the feelings.

Jimmy Duncan absorbs background material before beginning to write his paper in English.

Languages and math form curriculum base

Language and math formed the curriculum base on which all other subjects evolved. Elementary students received extra help on both language and math with Mrs. Helen Blankenship and Mrs. Mary Lee Tickle.

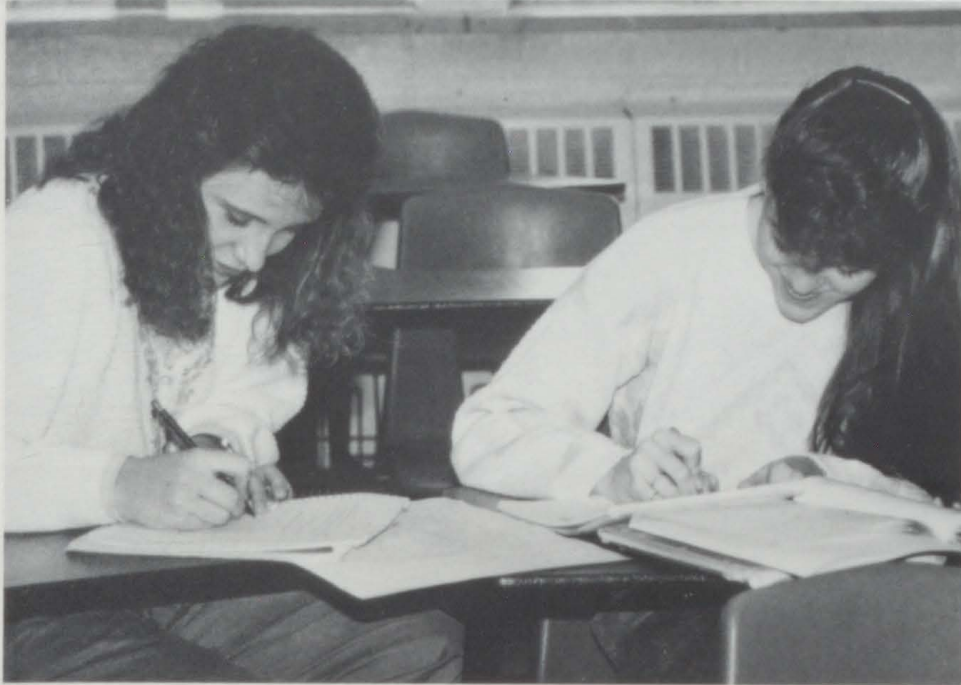

Secondary students found a good foundation in math (basics, applications, and algebra) made trigonometry and calculus easier to handle. Math instructors Mr. Tommy Bird, Mr. Rich Hankins and Mrs. Kay Mabe provided informative and interesting sessions.

"Bonjour!" was a common word all French students heard as they entered the classroom. Once again Miss Rowe made French an interesting and fun language.

Back in our native language, seniors put in many long hours preparing research papers which increased in number each year. All students tested their skills in grammar and literature under the tutelage of Mrs. Janet Faulkner, Mrs. Chris Bird, and Mrs. Sandra Harman

Physical Science + Biology= The tools for success

Between Mr. John Wagoner and Mr. Al Smith, the science curriculum was presented to each class very precisely and intensively. Whether they were laying the foundation for eighth graders or finishing the top floor for seniors, both teachers took time to bring the students to the proper level. Many hands-on projects were undertaken and completed. No matter what class you were in, what course you were taking, or what approach was used, when it was all finished you left the class with the tools for success.

Coping with world problems

Constructing a view of the world and its parts was the objective of the social studies classes. Under the direction of Mr. Havens, Mr. Beamer, Mr. Thacker, Mrs. Bane and Mrs. Harman, students studied the physical features of the world, the effects of pollution and overpopulation and what role they played in helping to curb these problems. They also learned how the political arena affects the economy and why they need to choose candidates wisely.

Keeping fit, enhancing skills, shaped students for the future

Keeping fit was the goal of the physical education and health department. Students built muscles while having fun in games and relays. Elementary students had structured P.E. with Mrs. Patty Hankins on Tuesday and Thursday. During this time secondary students studied health. Those reaching the ripe age of 15 also had driver ed. training.

Vocational classes used the skills of boys and girls and shaped them into men and women. Ag. students learned advanced farming techniques, shop skills and safety measures. Home Ec. students sharpened home-making skills while learning management and life skills. Visits to county offices, local businesses and the bank brought an awareness of the importance of decision making.

this option, but they enjoyed the freedom of their own spending money with the downside being less sleep. Achieving the status of independence made their efforts worthwhile.

Framework fashioned the end product

Framework of interested musicians and academic achievers fashioned a productive band and the foundation for Sr. Beta. Constructing a county band was a minor accomplishment for director Bob Correll. Dividing his time between Bland and Rocky Gap, he taught basic instrumentation, and the rest was smooth sailing. With a few joint practices, they were ready to march and perform in concert at both schools. The addition of a night out to eat provided the necessary boost to "make good". The Christmas concert was directed by Santa Correll and assisted by several elves. In a few short years these students have elevated to the status of jazz band and achieved local and regional honors. Wenona Scott earned a fourth chair flute symphonic band at the regional level during the past year.

Freshmen with a grade point average of at least 90 became eligible for Jr. Beta which is a method of recognizing students for outstanding academic achievement. They were tapped at the Beta assembly and, under the guidance of Ms. Teena Morefield, they planned service projects. One of those was serving refreshments for MACC matches at Bland. They supported their Snow Court candidates by selling doughnuts, baked goods and raffle tickets. At the end of the year members participated in a field trip to the Barter Theatre in Abingdon.

Laurels go to achievers

Beta's began constructing the year with a four-day concession stand at the fair. Next on the agenda was assembly by tapping new members and auctioning them as three-day slaves. Selling fruit followed with donations of fruit to area nursing homes.

Beta is an honor society, recognizing academic achievement, citizenship and high morals. A state convention is held annually-this year in Williamsburg-with students competing in scrapbook and individual areas. Last year Clinton Kegley won 1st at state, 3rd at national, in oratory.

Forensics practice became frenzied by January with the district competition held at Bland on February 20. Students entered the areas of oratory, prose, drama and poetry. Mrs. Chris Bird assumed coaching for participating students.

Clubs celebrate achievements with pizza

With an abundance of 56 members, the Bland Chapter of the Future Business Leaders of America were well on their way to receiving the Gold Seal Award for the 11th year in a row. This award is presented to the top 15% of all the clubs in the nation. They have also been an Honor Chapter every year beginning in 1979.

Included in the club's itinerary were pizza parties; competition at regional, state, and national levels; community service projects; fundraisers; and shadow day.

The French Club, which is sponsored by Diane Rowe, consists of 33 members. They had tentative plans for caroling, a French dinner, and pizza party.

Compiling and sorting kept two clubs busy

Meeting deadlines and gathering gossip for the "G-Vine" kept this year's Rocket Rapp staff busy, constantly hammering away at the typewriter and computer. These hardworking writers with advisers Mrs. Chris Bird and Mrs. Sandra Harman sponsored the Little and Junior Miss pageants.

The library club, under the direction of Ms. Elizabeth Newberry, planned a pizza party as a reward for their work shelving books, sorting magazines and assisting with book fairs.

Shutterbugs loved cameras

This year our safety patrol was small in number but large in security. Members accompanied kindergarteners to buy ice cream and to afternoon buses. They did their jobs efficiently and effectively.

For the first time in BCS history a photography club was erected. This fledgling club made its way to the top with trips to Dismal Falls and Cascades. A contest and show/display was held in the spring. Under the sublime guidance of co-sponsors, Betsy Newberry and John Wagoner, the Shutterbugs learned to take and develop their own pictures.

Their expressions and exclamations revealed surprise and pleasure as they watched their pictures come to life during processing.

Groups that served the community

The two area 4-H groups, Bland and Mechanicsburg worked busily building funds for the summer '92 trip to Florida. Making apple butter and bake sales were just a few of their fundraisers. They held meetings with such topics as recycling and keeping a checkbook.

SCA members had reason to be proud of their club as their candidates for Snow King & Queen, Danny Morehead and Sheree Burton, received the title. The SCA club strived to serve the school and worked on a recycling project.

VICA members have learned the experience and pride in getting a job. Sponsored by Mrs. Carolyn Bane, this club's members attended school and also held a job. They attended VPI for a field trip.

Upward Bound helped college bound students by meeting every other Saturday for planning sessions.

First place win from ASPA

The yearbook had its own construction when interested students signed up, making it the largest yearbook staff ever. Numerous decisions about color, design, sessions, and type were the

New contests added to field day

After several dry years, interest was once again sparked for field day. Rusty Bird took the helm with contagious enthusiasm. Certificates were made and events coordinated. On May 24, 1991, student body and faculty gathered on the fairgrounds. Added features created a humorous side, the tug-o-war and pie-eating. After all events were completed the following list made up the 1st place winners.

Spirit and enthusiasm motivate tennis team

With the return of most of the players from last year, plus four new additions, the Bland girls' tennis team went into the season with spirit and enthusiasm. Under the coaching of Mrs. Patty Hankins, the girls worked on ball hitting techniques practically every day after school.

Although they lost two players, Tina Brown and Amanda Harden, they are looking forward to next season with spirit and motivation.

A dream focused on success

Two male citizens had a dream, a dream of Bland County youth playing football. In a traditionally basketball area, football was mainly a TV sport. Now, after three years of building, there were two teams, an 8th grade and JV with next year's plans including a varsity team featuring home games. The field is still in the preparation stage at Bastian. The team, composed of players from both high schools, is believed to be the only combined team in the Eastern United States. Though fierce rivals in basketball, these young men joined their efforts for a winning season. They have not experienced a losing season in their history. The JV's only loss came from a close game with Giles.

Coaching the teams were Ed

Selfe and Dave Lambert, the men with a dream. Both men were football players, and they built and developed from a sandlot to the current status. They did not accept a "no", but were determined to succeed. Bland County Bears football began with a dream and has stayed afloat because of talent, interest and determination from players, coaches and supportive citizens.

"New" was the word for cheerleaders

With changes and new things abounding, it was a foregone conclusion for varsity cheerleaders to purchase new uniforms. They were definitely a "new" look, having a solid back maroon and a gold front. New sponsors were also in order with Mrs. Bonnie Blankenship coaching the 8th grade squad and Mrs. Patty Hankins coaching the JV and Varsity squads.

Finding a spot for practice became frustrating with construction crews filling the hallways and teams practicing in the gym. Between practices they prepared and hung posters and made the "poster doorway" for the varsity to break through on entering the gym. Head cheerleaders were Beth Bridges for JV and Stephanie Meadows, varsity.

Injuries shattered Rockettes season

After a long, hot summer of conditioning, the 1991 Rockettes were ready to "play ball". Competition was tough but that did not dampen the team's spirit or motivation. What shattered the team was injuries in late season to key players-Sarah Thompson with multiple knee injuries and Julie Strock with a cracked hip.

Hankins, returning coach. The season ended in a playoff game against Giles with only four players on the floor.

Good season provided building for future

The quickness of guards, accurate outside shooting, and prompt rebounds brought a winning season for the junior varsity squad. Consisting of one eighth grader, twelve freshmen, and two sophomores, they were coached by Rich Hankins with assistant coach Ray Puckett.

Although some of their games were very strenuous, the JV Rockets displayed spirit, great enthusiasm and sportsmanship. They took the losses in stride as a building block for future games. Fan support helped to spur the players to a good season.

In the home game with Giles the score was tied. David Lambert went to the free throw line and missed. Recovering possession with three seconds left on the clock, David threw up an impossible shot — and it cleared the net giving Bland the victory.

TOP: Rusty Meadows pops through the poster made by the cheerleaders when varsity players enter the playing arena.

Varsity team had to build from scratch

The only '91 varsity player who didn't graduate was Charlie Thompson. Therefore, a new team had their work cut out for them. Building stamina and esteem they ran, jogged, lifted weights prior to practices. Several seniors who had played in previous years on JV came back for their final year (Roger Blankenship, Toby Dotson, Robbie Taylor, Rusty Meadows, Greg Boksa). They found a much more difficult level of competition in varsity play. They developed new skills both mentally and physically and, for those returnees, will be better prepared for the challenges of another year.

While the overall record may not be great, they can be proud of their spirit, enthusiasm, and persistence. Coach for the team was Rich Hankins. Returning as center will be Jes Selfe, along with teammates Aaron Faulkner, Chris Tickle, Brad Harden, and Kevin King.

After many grueling practices, the volleyball teams were chosen and ready to play under the coaching of Miss Teena Morefield. The teams, consisting of 29 students from the ninth to twelfth grades, were split in A and B teams. The A team boasted an international member, Danielle Garcia from Brazil. Danielle loved to spike that ball!

Practices were set for Tuesday and Thursday making a busy day for girls who were also cheerleaders and yearbook staffers.

Setting a good serve still posed a problem for several players, but they have improved on the receiving serve.

The A team ended with a 3-6 record and the B team had a 6-2 record. Interest in volleyball continues to grow.

Softball replaced baseball in 1991

Lack of interest and talent brought death to the baseball season until next year. Instead, intramural teams emerged, just for the fun of playing. Without outside competitive pressure, games were relaxed with laughter, not anger. Keeping in practice with softball provided a better foundation for next year's baseball teams.

John Wagoner shows how it's done.
Billy Epperson bolts to first.

Robbie Chewning lams the ball to home plate.

Never the same

Looking back over the 1991-92 school year, the picture we see is different from other years. Renovations on the school not only brought a new look, but many other changes. With construction workers roaming wild, teachers cracked down on where students could go. Also, no longer did one have to walk outside to go to classes in Wagner (except the three times crewmen redid the steps).

With all the changes, one thing remained the same — the common bond between students. From the sharing of laughs to a friendly shoulder to lean on, someone was always there for other's needs during this "year of change."

As the year ended, we could look back over the happenings of this year and regard it simply as a "year of construction." For everyone who attended BCS, when the final bell rang on the last day, all left better equipped to face our changing world.

Colophon

The yearbook staff consisted of 25 members from grades 10-12 who planned pages with copy and even took a number of the candid photos used. Student photographers were Jason Gusler, Molly Richardson, Bridgette Penley, Stayce Tibbs, Tracy Hall, Cyndi McGrady.

Professional photography was by Max Ward Company of Roanoke and Life Touch of Chesapeake. The publisher was Taylor Publishing Company of Dallas, TX.

We used the Omni Program with 80 lb. enamel paper. The typeface used was Pyramid. The cover used foil stamping on a standard base of 7 3/4 x 10 1/2. The cost of the 1992 yearbook was $25 with 330 sold. Production costs were over $11,000.

Operating expenses increased by 11.3% in 1999, primarily due to higher depreciation charges and increased research and development costs. Despite this, the operating profit margin improved from 32.9% in 1998 to 35.4% in 1999.

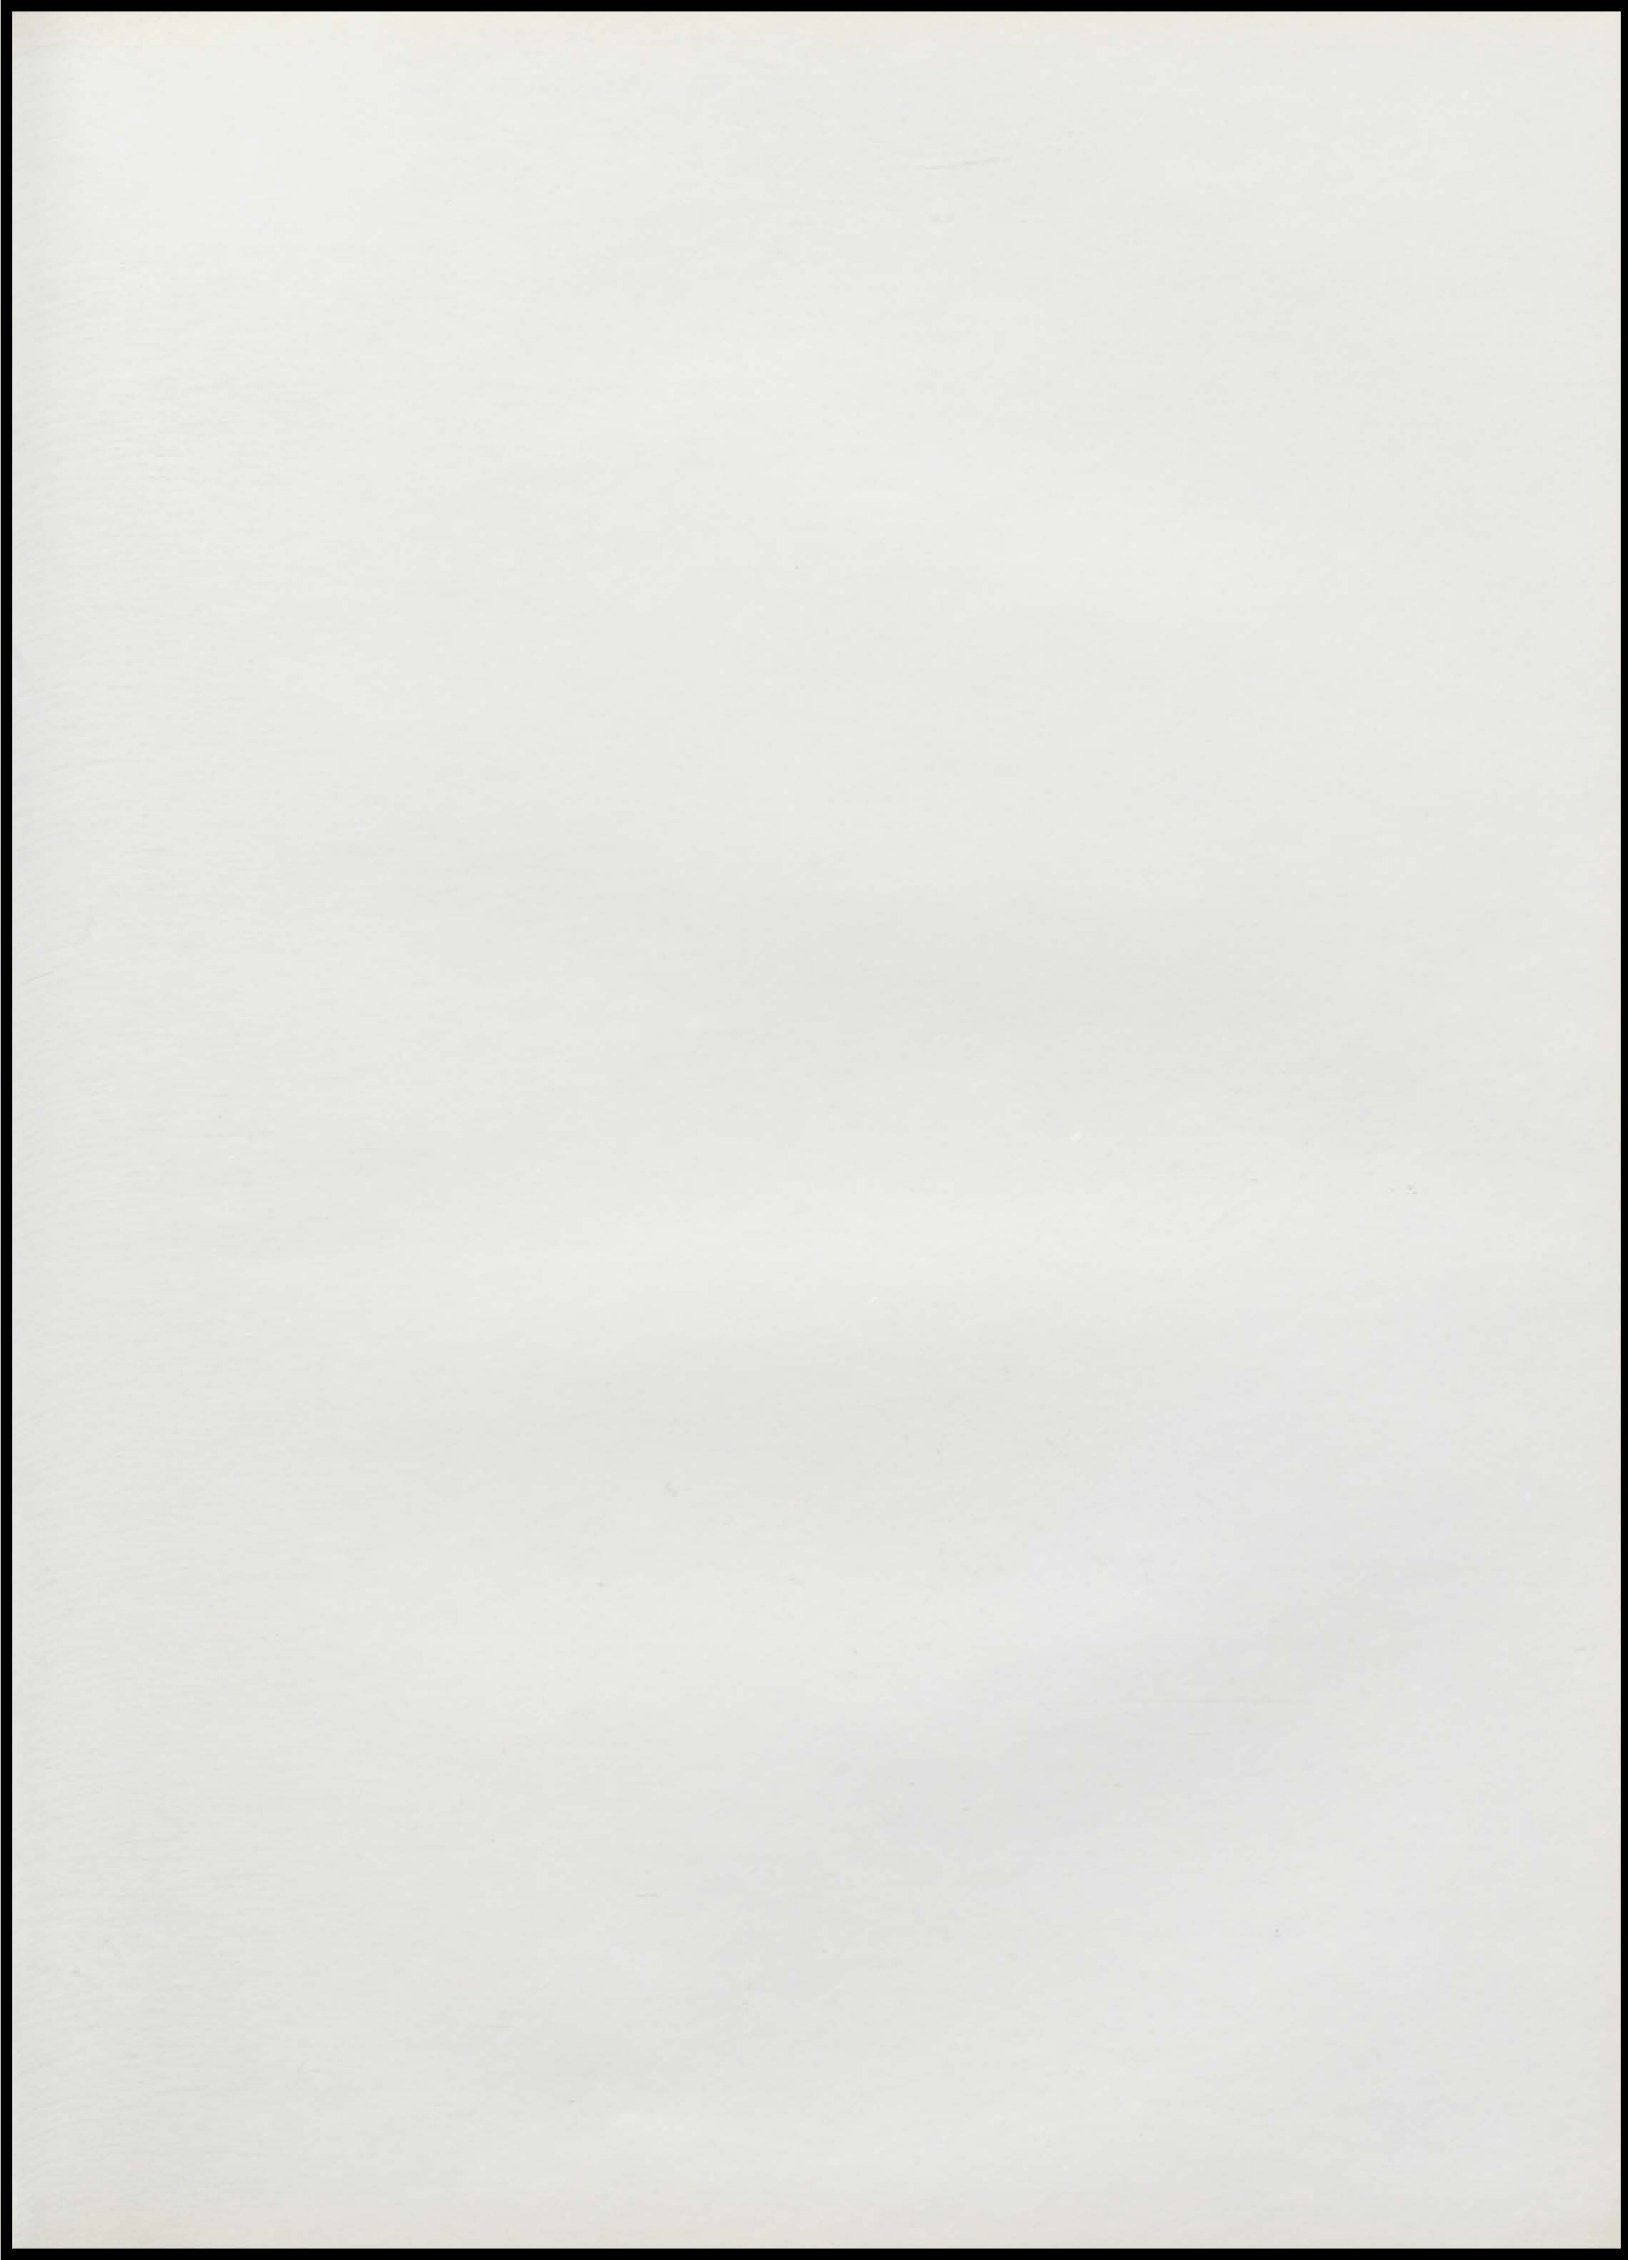

The company's profit before tax increased by 17.0% in 1999, driven by the improvement in operating profit. The effective tax rate remained stable at 2.5% in 1999, compared with 2.6% in 1998.
